WILLIE'S STORY

Willie Brown has many compelling tales to tell of a glorious past and then a fall from grace that left him homeless for two decades. A fall so far that had him sleeping in a tent through bitter Detroit winters.

He tells of being a Marine veteran singing background vocals for the legendary funk band Slave. Willie says he's related to the great Sam Cooke and then croons his own soulful rendition of You Send Me. He tells of boxing professionally, making good money from fighting and singing, and then losing it all through bad financial decisions and alcoholism.

"I lost my home to foreclosure in the mid-80s, and then started living on the streets, in different shelters, in vacant houses and abandoned cars, wherever I could find temporarily," said Willie, who is now 63. "I put myself through hell and hit rock bottom. I didn't care, didn't trust people, and didn't have anything. I just wanted to be left alone."

Two years ago, Willie met a homeless woman named Nikatha in a city park and they felt a bond.

"She was in a situation similar to me and was trying to overcome homelessness and alcohol addiction... she didn't have anyone else."

Willie obtained a tent, and he and Nikatha stayed together in it, first at Hart Plaza, then nearby. During the frigid months, they put mattresses against the sides of the tent to absorb the wind and cold.

"We made it through two winters, but I heard about people who froze to death on the streets, and that was a wake-up call that we needed to get a place of our own."

That's when Willie found his way to our Housing Resource Center (HRC). Willie worked with Housing Navigator, Bukeka, and Housing Locator Specialist, Karen.

At the beginning of May, Willie and Nikatha moved into an apartment in the Dexter Linwood neighborhood. Then Willie's Clinical Housing Specialist, Dan, designed a treatment plan to help him maintain his housing.

"I'm still striving to make things right in my life,"

"I'm in recovery from my drinking and I know it must be a lifelong commitment. I had money and fame and lost it all because I only thought of myself and didn't put God first. I want to change and be a help to others."

DIANA'S STORY

Diana and her family relocated when her husband Franco got a job working in construction in Detroit. Diana and Franco had uprooted their life from Texas to create a better life for their family, but housing issues nearly derailed their dream.

Diana learned about one of the vacant Newberry houses undergoing renovation and stopped by to inquire about buying it when the work was finished.

Diana quickly got to work on completing the necessary steps to make her dream a reality for her family. First up: Homebuyer Education classes. Next: meet with financial coach. Last, and most tedious: assemble all the necessary documents.

Diana and Franco closed on their new home and moved in shortly after with their three kids. Their monthly mortgage payments are close to what they were paying in rent for a less than ideal rental.

"We've never been homeowners before, and we're excited to have a place of our own. The home is beautifully renovated, and I can't wait to start my flower garden in the yard."

Now that the family has decided to make Detroit their home, Diana is starting to work on her own career goals. She enrolled in Bank Teller training with Southwest Solutions.

"There are many opportunities in the city and we're happy that we get to stay here," Diana said.

"We also enjoy the many different cultures that make up southwest Detroit."
